GPC's 2009 Sunday Sessions program kicks off this weekend

Gladstone Ports Corporation (GPC) is proud to announce its free live entertainment program, Sunday Sessions, will recommence on Sunday 29 March 2009.

Brisbane based duo, Acoustic Soup, will kick off the 2009 program, providing session-goers with a mouth watering selection of acoustic favourites combining the finest ingredients from around the globe.

The duo's repertoire features songs by the present and past masters of acoustic music, the classics, the latest in vogue, the quirky adaptations and the songs that have stood the test of time. On the menu: Bernard Fanning, Pete Murray, Jack Johnson, Crowded House, Dido, Eagles, Steve Miller, Pearl Jam, Tracey Chapman and many more.

GPC CEO Leo Zussino said community members and visitors were encouraged to gather their family and friends, pack a picnic lunch, and enjoy the free entertainment in the relaxing surrounds of the Port of Gladstone's Marina parklands.

"We have had some wonderful feedback on our past sessions and this weekend's session is sure to again be a crowd pleaser," Mr Zussino said.

In a new location this year, Sunday Sessions will be held near the playground area adjacent to the Marina stage from 12pm-3pm.

Popular GPC mascot, Curtis the Turtle, will drop in to each session to hand out goodies and entertain the kids.

Copies of GPC's 2009 Sunday Sessions Calendar are now available from the Marina Office, GAPDL, Kullaroo House, or on the GPC website www.gpcl.com.au.
